

Ministry focuses on changing lives

Radio crusade reaches prisons

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

When Greg Stilson and Jeff Eby speak of themselves as fence straddlers, they are not trying to sound wishy-washy.

Stilson is president and Eby the chaplain and outreach director of Christ Truth Radio Crusade, an Upland-based organization aimed at reaching prisoners through the Bible.

Describing their work as a "liaison between two worlds,"

Stilson said, "We're on the fence. We have to convince people inside and out they're human."

Eby said the ministry, not affiliated with any one church, gives Bibles, calendars, Christmas cards and other materials to inmates at "183 prisons and penitentiaries throughout the United States," working with prison chaplains.

After a year off the airwaves, Christ Truth Radio Crusade will begin broadcasting again this Saturday, he added.

Radio station KIEV in Los Angeles will carry the 15-minute program — "Sharing Time," featuring interviews with inmates — at 7:45 a.m. Saturdays.

Eby's office at the organization's headquarters, 113 N. First Ave., doubles as an engineering booth, where tapes and recording equipment abound.

There he and Stilson recently outlined some of their goals and pointed out changes since the ministry was founded in Upland 30 years ago.

Once well known nationally through its radio broadcasts, Stilson said the ministry has "shrunk" in its overall approach and is small compared to other organizations doing similar work.

"So we try to deal on a personal basis," he said.

Stilson added, "Giving a Bible is more than transferring material. To us it signifies a changed life."

In addition to Bibles, the ministry supplies inmates with a Bible study course, "Building Walls of Faith."

Both Stilson and Eby stressed that numbers do not tell the ministry's story, but Christ Truth Radio Crusade has distributed more than 56,000 Bibles to prisoners over the last five years.

"We're nationwide and we don't need to be," said Eby, who speaks to church gatherings and serves as a volunteer chaplain at area prisons.

Stilson, who travels to prisons throughout the country, said the ministry focuses more today on changes the Bibles foster in inmates, rather than on sheer numbers.

"We've become well aware that the prison system as it stands today does not rehabilitate," he said.

Stilson prefers the term "regeneration," saying, "Rehabilitation stinks, but regeneration daily through Jesus Christ is real."

He and Eby noted many prison programs turn into a "sham," because inmates learn what words to say to impress various counselors, social workers and others.

Eby said, "We offer the one program that eliminates phonies... When a man accepts Jesus Christ as his savior, all eyes are on him — he's not playing a game."

He added the limited figures that exist show an inmate who has found religion while serving time is much less likely to become a repeater. For other inmates, prison can be a school toward becoming a more accomplished criminal, Eby noted.

Eby said fear breeds violence in prison but the Bible can replace fear with peace. On the outside, he added, Christian forgiveness and ties to churches are the keys to helping a former convict stay out of prison.

When he addresses church groups, Eby said, "I ask if we can count on the church taking a man in. I haven't found any that say 'no' outright."

However, he later noted that while his remarks are usually well received, pledges of funds or volunteering time at local prisons are harder to come by. Limited funding, received from contributions, so far has prevented the ministry from starting a followup program helping inmates returning to society.

Another stumbling block centers on facts and allegations revealed after the murder of the Rev. Dan Gilbert at the Uplander Motor Hotel in 1962.

Gilbert, an evangelist who was a gifted speaker, founded the ministry in 1949. With evidence pointing his romantic involvement with the chief suspect's wife, Gilbert's reputation suffered and so did the ministry's. Misuse of the organization's funds was also alleged.

Stilson's father, Charles, joined the ministry shortly before Gilbert was killed and carried on its work until he died in 1974. The younger Stilson became president and Eby joined shortly thereafter.

Stilson said many people have forgotten the good work Gilbert did in the wake of the murder and investigation and trial that followed. Both he and Eby said the ministry and Dan Gilbert were not one and the same.

Referring to Gilbert, Stilson recalled, "He seemed to have a special place in his heart for people in prison."

Staff development program

Upland district trains educators teaching" has advanced greatly in the last 20 years, comparing the changes to those in engineering although not as dramatic.

Topics covered in the program may bear directly on instructional technique. Sanchez gave an example as developing and extending students' thinking skills through "Bloom's taxonomy of the cognitive domain."

Or they may focus on management skills. Kathy Murphy — one of the two staff development resource teachers, along with Pat Wolfe — covered decision-making by consensus and other methods during her discussion last Thursday.

But Sanchez stressed that the students are the ones who ultimately benefit from the program.

He described the staff development program as having a kind of "ripple effect." Assisted by their "support" teachers, principals pass along what they learn to the education staff at their schools with the hope of improving learning.

Under the broad category of instructional leadership, Sanchez identified four areas of concentration for the program: classroom management, instructional skills, clinical supervision and instructional materials.

He indicated that principals play a key, but often unrecognized role in this instructional leadership. An Upland principal typically makes about 100 formal observations — both unannounced and with advance knowledge — of classes during the school year, he said.

However, Sanchez noted few principals ever received specific training in what to look for and what suggestions to make.

Along with the Thursday sessions, Ms. Murphy and Mrs. Wolfe sit in with Upland principals observing classes. At times, he added, they also attend the teacher-principal conferences that follow.

What the principals may tell the teachers can amount to a quick refresher on use of reinforcement theory, for example, Sanchez said.

Or discussions might continue over several weeks if the principal is helping to fill in a gap in teaching technique stemming from methods either recently developed or not covered at a teacher's college, he added.

Ms. Murphy and Mrs. Wolfe also help outline staff development goals and strategies at each school.

Although Sanchez said the curriculum of the staff development program "transcends" particular grades, ages and subjects, the Target of complaints

Packing house plans to close, council told

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

A part owner of the Euclid Avenue Orange Association, an Upland fixture for 50 years, told the city council Monday night the citrus packing house definitely plans to cease operations this summer.

Ged Tilden said a new plant, the Arlington Heights Citrus Co., should be in full operation by late July or early August. The packing house will replace facilities that burned down two years ago in Arlington.

Tilden, part owner of both the Upland and Arlington packing houses, said, "We have gone ahead with the Arlington Heights facility, and as soon as it is completed, we're going to close the Euclid Avenue orange plant."

He added, "We have tried very hard to get along with our neighbors."

The packing house in south Upland has been a target of complaints, particularly over truck traffic, from nearby residents of Euclid Place.

Premo Valle, a spokesman for the residents, said "80 percent or more of the problem is still with the noise, congestion and nuisance of the trucks."

He noted residents first brought their concerns to the city council in September 1977. Valle said he "laid low" on complaints since a meeting last July with packing house owners and city officials.

The owners made a commitment then to close the Upland plant once the Arlington packing house opened. The opening was scheduled for this month or April, Valle said.

Valle noted an article appearing in the Jan. 30 edition of The Daily Report rekindled his concerns over the future of the Euclid Avenue Orange Association.

That article — based on an interview with Tilden's brother, William — stated the packing house planned to shut down or greatly reduce its operations this spring.

William Tilden, an attorney, is also part owner of both the Upland and Arlington packing houses.

He told The Daily Report in January packing house owners were unsure about future use of the Upland site, but held out the possibility of continuing in the citrus business on a much smaller scale in Upland.

William Tilden also mentioned conversion of the site for use in retail sales, a warehouse or a restaurant, among other possibilities.

He is on a skiing vacation in Colorado and could not be reached this morning for comment.

However, his brother said the Upland packing house will definitely be shut down once the Arlington site is ready.

Ged Tilden pointed out rain has caused construction delays, pushing back the opening date from spring to summer. He noted grading is complete and the "equipment is probably 90 percent built."

Mayor Pro Tem John McCarthy, who attended that meeting last July, said, "I was a little disturbed when I read The Daily Report. I thought there was an indication they were reneging on this commitment."

"No, sir," Tilden said.

After the meeting, he said the packing house has had discussions with representatives of restaurants, but no definite plans for conversion have been reached.

Teens plan car wash

Community Teens Productions will conduct a car wash from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at the B&B Gulf Station, corner of San Antonio Avenue and Foothill Boulevard in Upland.

Halfway through the city's second year of growth management, condominiums continue to rate well under the plan and far outpace the conventional single-family homes so dominant during Upland's recent building boom.

Of the 298 units forwarded in the first two quarters of growth-management ratings, 232 of them have been condominiums. Single-family homes number 58 and there have been eight apartment units.

Planning Director Bill Young said one of the major goals of Upland's growth-management plan has contributed to the surge in condominium projects.

The plan is designed to promote "infilling," new construction in largely already developed areas. Young has noted the cost of extending public services for infilling is less than for so-called "leapfrog" development, new construction in outlying areas.

He pointed out many of the infill sections remaining in the city are zoned and designated in the general plan for multiple-family units. These tend to be in South Upland.

Condominiums can be built on land zoned for multiple-family units, as well as single-family zoning.

Upland's recent boom in home construction, with its concentration on houses, gave a "distorted" picture of residential building, Young said.

He added that infilling has led developers to "focus attention" on condominiums.

The condominium trend was seen in Upland's first year of the growth-management plan. Of 868 units approved in the point-rating system, 490 were condominiums, 301 traditional single-family homes and 77 apartment units.

An administrative growth-management committee assigns points according to standards set when the city council approved the plan in June 1977. Only the top-rated projects are forwarded to the planning commission for ratification of the point ratings.

Later, the commission and the council review the particular merits of each project when their tentative tract maps, site plans or conditional-use permits come up for approval.

Density is a key reason why Upland is getting condominium projects instead of apartments under growth management. Developers who reduce the densities of their projects can accumulate more points.

Young said, "One principle thing that came out is that although these areas are zoned for multiple family, the actual densities are turning out to be less than half what's permitted."

He described the plan as having a "softening effect" on areas "otherwise substantially impacted through high density residential use."

Numbers play an instrumental role in growth management, but an important figure is determined not by Upland, but by the Chino Basin Municipal Water District.

Because of limited sewage capacity, Upland's allocation for new residential units for connection to the regional sewage system is now restricted to 500 annually.

Upland set 125 units as a target for the maximum number of units forwarded each quarter to the planning commission. So far in fiscal 1978-79, the city is running ahead of this pace with 298 units approved for the first two quarters.

Young said the residential projects forwarded in the last half of the year will determine how the remaining 202 units will be divided between the final two quarters.

He added that the total number of units might be revised higher or lower if the Chino Basin district finds its projections on sewage capacity are off, but substantial changes will probably wait for expansion of Regional Plant No. 1 to be completed in 1980.

Meanwhile, developers compete for ratings something like television networks.

Projects totaling hundreds of units fall short under the rating system each quarter, and Young said some projects have been waiting eight or nine months for point totals high enough to get off the shelves.

Young noted developers reduce densities or add amenities to gain growth-management points. In one case, an apartment project started with a minus 20 points, but ultimately received 43.4 points and approval.

Young said he expects changes in growth management in Upland's future, but added, "I envision the city will continue to practice growth management in one form or another until all vacant residential land is exhausted."

"Growth management has reduced the impact of urbanization on the existing community and allowed the city to timely plan for the provision of municipal services."

On Thursday afternoons, principals and teachers gather in Room 1 at Upland Elementary School and become the students in a unique class.

With their pens and pencils poised, the principals and one teacher from each of the Upland School District's nine elementary and two junior high schools attend sessions of the district's staff development program.

Loren Sanchez, the district's assistant superintendent of instruction, said the district is applying for its third year of federal funding through the state for the staff development program.

He estimated that the Upland district may be only one of 20 districts of some 1,100 in the state that have a "comprehensive staff development program."

Along with turning the tables on a group of principals and teachers, Sanchez said the staff development program keeps administrators and instructors abreast of theories and techniques in education.

Central trustees reject firm's summer school offer

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

Despite uncertainty over its own summer program, the Central school board rejected an offer last week from a private company to run summer school using district classrooms and teachers.

On a 4-1 vote, trustees turned down the proposal from American Learning Corp., with offices in Huntington Beach, to provide four hours of summer instruction for 24 days this summer.

Trustee Dale Taylor voted for the proposal.

Four-hour classes would have cost parents $144 per child

The rest of the board indicated the cost — $144 per child that would be paid by parents — figured heavily in voting against the offer.

President Ruth Musser called the proposal "discriminatory — the ones who cannot afford it are the ones who need it."

Taylor said, "I think they provide a good program, and it's an opportunity our children might not have otherwise."

Along with other school districts throughout the state, Central canceled summer school last year when state funding was eliminated after passage of Proposition 13.

Superintendent Norman Guith told the board no legislation has been passed by the state to reimburse districts for holding summer school this year. In the past, reimbursement has been based on attendance.

He added that prospects appear dim that any bill leading to summer sessions will clear the legislature, although several measures are pending.

Taylor said American Learning Corp. has "targeted" some 200 school districts — including several locally — of the state's approximately 1,100 for the program.

Low-wealth districts are omitted from the company's approach not only for parents' inability to pay, but because these districts qualify for state and federal funding that might be converted for summer school, Taylor said.

Guith said American Learning Corp.'s offer is the only one of its kind the Central district has received. Jack Jones — former superintendent of the Ontario-Montclair School District — is a vice president of the firm.

Guith said the company would hire district teachers at $40 for a 4½-hour work day, but supplies its own materials and develops its own curriculum.

He added that American Learning Corp. would pay up to $500 per classroom for leasing district facilities. However, Guith pointed out that figure includes utilities and custodial services.

The district would make little or no profit, Guith said.

Trustee Pamela Wright said, "There are several new private schools in the area and by us providing the staff and the school facilities, we are in fact helping to make competition for these private schools."

Referring to the American Learning Corp. offer, she added, "This is not a proved and established thing."

Taylor said he knew of only one private school nearby without a waiting list and noted private schools generally offer a longer school day than in the typical summer session. "I think it's a bargain for the parents," he said, adding that the city of Rancho Cucamonga is unlikely to use school facilities for a summer recreation program due to Proposition 13 funding limits.

One speaker said, "I think you'll find a lot of the parents, at least at Central (school), will not be able to use it — it'll be 10 to one."

In other action, board members indicated their patience was wearing thin waiting for preliminary drawings for the district's third elementary school scheduled to open in fall 1980.

Guith said he would review the district's contract with the county counsel in San Bernardino for possible legal options against the architectural firm of Frick, Frick and Jette in Santa Ana.

The board authorized preliminary drawings based on its suggestions Dec. 12. Guith said one factor in the delays, according to architect Leo Jette, has been the firm's time devoted for planning the "instant school" to be used at the site

Anti-gang program seeks to quell violence in sections of West End

By BOB NAGEY
Staff Writer

An intensive anti-gang program which seeks to make life safer in parts of the Chino, Ontario and Rancho Cucamonga area is being drawn up by a committee under sponsorship of San Bernardino County Supervisor Robert O. Townsend.

Gang activities are one of the main concerns which affect the quality of life in the West End, according to the supervisor. A community program that deals both with the present problem and the diversion of potential young lawbreakers into more acceptable activities is an absolute must, he stressed.

Townsend's committee, formed last summer and headed by his assistant, Ben Burrell, has started contacting community-based social agencies, school administrations, juvenile courts and volunteers to determine what course of action to adopt and to what extent these groups can assist.

Burrell plans to conduct a meeting within the next month to explore the problem in depth and another session in about three months to begin working out a plan to combat juvenile delinquency in the West End.

"We would like to get in touch with hard-core gang members — those who run the Sinners in Chino, the Black Angels in Ontario, and others — and talk with them," Burrell explained. "We'd like them to use their leadership abilities in more productive ways than gang warfare which often leads to death."

Frequently, the victims are the gang members and their families. At other times, they are the innocent.

Two persons were gunned down several years ago while on guard duty against vandalism at a Chino church. Last fall, a motorist died when a stray bullet fired during a gang chase struck him as he was driving his car on Central Avenue just south of the Pomona Freeway. Such incidents have aroused the community, said Burrell.

But cases of looting, intimidation and violence in neighborhoods where gang members live, as well as bitter warfare among gangs in Chino, Ontario, Pomona and Cucamonga have upset residents just as much, he added.

"Some of the people who have volunteered for the program are parents of the gang members," Burrell said. "Others are former members who have matured and are respected members of the community now."

Townsend said he sees the problem in two phases: One dealing with gang activities right now, and another that would identify youngsters who are potential gang members and show them other alternatives before they join the gangs.

In the first case, he wants to implement a community block program similar to those in Pomona and Fontana. These programs band residents of a block together for their mutual protection.

Confirmed by full board

Eight named to serve on county commissions

Eight appointments to county boards and commissions have been made by the West End's two county supervisors.

The appointments were confirmed last week by the full board of supervisors.

Supervisor Robert O. Townsend of Chino made seven of the appointments. Supervisor Cal McElwain of Upland made one.

The appointees are:

— Frank C. Orndorff of Chino, to a full four-year term on the seven-member civil service commission. Orndorff was originally appointed Feb. 20, 1978.

— George E. Riggs of Fontana, to an unexpired term on the 15-member economic development commission. Riggs, publisher of the Fontana Herald-News, will replace Larry Moniak, co-owner of a Fontana industrial hardware firm. Moniak resigned with about 10 months left in his term. A regular term is three years.

— Ernest Rowley of Montclair, to an unexpired term on the 11-member advisory committee for Zone 1 of the county flood control district. Zone 1 includes most of the West End.

Rowley is general manager of the Chino Basin Water Conservation District and a former Montclair City Council member. He replaces Carl J. Freeman of Upland, who resigned. The term expires Jan. 31, 1981.

— Bill Bringman of Ontario and Rudolph Morris to the 17-member advisory board for mental health programs.

Bringman is McElwain's administrative assistant and will serve as the supervisors' representative on the advisory board. He replaces Dan Wobser, administrative assistant to Supervisor Joseph Kamansky, who lost to McElwain.

Morris was appointed to another three-year term. He was originally appointed Dec. 29, 1976.

— Dave Mortenson to a full four-year term on the seven-member advisory commission for County Service Area 19. The district provides services for Glenmeade, an unincorporated community in the Chino Hills.

Mortenson, a regional planner, was first appointed Jan. 6, 1975.

— Jerry Dunham and Eugene T. Haberski to new four-year terms on the five-member advisory commission for County Service Area 48. The district provides services for Carbon Canyon, an unincorporated community in the Chino Hills.

Dunham was originally appointed June 9, 1975.

Cabrillo award winner named

Judy Fulkerth has been named the recipient of the Honorary Service Award for Cabrillo Elementary School in Upland.

Mrs. Fulkerth has been involved as a team mother for the Ontario Western Little League and the Upland Hilltoppers Softball Team, a hospitality chairman for the PTA, a Joy volunteer, room mother, was on the Cabrillo bowling league, library chairman for 1977-78, and is currently employed with the Lincoln Development Center in Ontario, working with handicapped children.

Senior wins speech contest

Speaking on the topic "Who Am I?" Alta Loma High School senior Alice Hall took first place at the annual Lion's Club speech Contest, held recently at the Cucamonga District Lion's Club.

Runners-up in the contest, also Alta Loma High School students, were Carol Villoni, sophomore, and Barbara Frame, senior. Each girl spoke on the same topic, and will receive a desk trophy with a pen.

Miss Hall will proceed to the Lion's Club Zone Competition, scheduled this month at the Clam Digger.

Bargains

Students re-issue shoppers' guide

By MARGE GROSS
Staff Writer

Are you thinking of buying a teeny-weeny bikini? Or perhaps water lilies for your pond? Maybe you're hankering for an antique kitchen stove. Making up one's mind to buy these or a number of other items, especially bargains, is easy.

Where to find them can be difficult. The Chaffey College Home Economics Club has solved the problem by publishing again a 156-page paperback catalog called "Bargain Shopping."

In 1977, the class took on the adventure and put out 250 books. The edition was so popular, the class had to print up another 200.

This year, 500 copies are hot off the press and are available in the Chaffey College Book Store and the Bookworm on Second Avenue, Upland.

Mary Lou Waldrop, professor of home economics, had her class set out on the project with Elizabeth Wright as adviser.

The sub-title is called "Bargain Shopping for the Unusual and Inexpensive." The class of 15 students scoured the area and Los Angeles and surrounding communities for the listings.

Every place listed have been visited by the students, and according to Mrs. Waldrop, some of the places aren't "all that inexpensive," but are included because they are "great places to know about."

Mrs. Wright pointed out that the home economics department does not endorse the stores in the book, "we only describe them."

The bargain-hunting book also is made easier this year by having the areas broken into different colors. Yellow is the West End, San Bernardino, Riverside and San Gabriel Valley shopping areas. Green is the beach-Orange County area, and pink is the Los Angeles area. Blue is general and leads in all directions.

Proceeds from the book sales will go toward sending students to the State Home Economics Convention April 6 to 9 in Sacramento. So far, students planning to attend are Jennifer Danser, Maria Sura, Paula Kratzer, Jill Johnson and Margaret Ann Sherrill. Mrs. Wright also will attend.

"Bargain Shopping" is an all-student effort. They research, print and assemble the book. A new one will not be put out again until 1980 — so bargain hunters should hang onto this edition. Loan it, but be sure to get it back.

Checking over some of the "Bargain Shopping" paperback catalogs compiled by the Chaffey College Home Economics Club are Mary Lou Waldrop, left, home economics professor, and Millena Cambridge, student and club treasurer. This is the second "Bargain Shopping" catalog to be done by the club and it lists hard-to-find, bargain and other interesting items. The club gathered all the information, printed and put together 500 books. They can be bought at the Chaffey College Book Store and the Bookworm on Second Avenue, Upland. Field trip for parents

The Title I district level parent advisory council for the Ontario-Montclair School District has scheduled a parent field trip March 15 to the Griffith Park Observatory, according to Tima Williams, health and parent advisory specialist for the federal projects office.

Parents will be transported from the federal projects office at noon to see the show at 2 p.m., and will return to the federal projects office at about 5 p.m.

The federal projects office is located at 1540 Sultana Ave., Ontario, between De Anza Junior High School and Linda Vista Elementary School.

De Anza school paper drive

The Letterman's Club at De Anza Junior High is sponsoring a paper drive and collecting aluminum cans to purchase athletic awards for the school. These awards will be given out at the end of the school year. The newspaper drive will extend through March 31, according to Ken Urwin, chairman of the boys' physical education department and sponsor of the group.

Newspapers may be brought to the back parking lot at De Anza Junior High School, 1450 S. Sultana Ave., Ontario. A pickup truck will be available during the day for depositing newspapers. Aluminum cans are being collected as an ongoing project throughout the year and may also be brought to the school. Anyone with large quantities of newspapers that cannot be delivered to De Anza, may call Ken Urwin at 986-8577 to arrange to have them picked up.

Chaffey College rape workshop

Chaffey College, in association with the Attorney General's Crime Prevention Unit, will sponsor a free Rape Workshop, Friday, March 9 from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

This workshop is the first in a series of crime prevention programs to be presented on the college's Alta Loma campus. It is designed to help people become aware of the extent of the crime, the reasons behind the act, the legal remedies, and treatment and prevention.

Members of the Attorney General's Crime Prevention Unit staff, as well as representatives from San Bernardino County area agencies, will be participating. George Deukmejian, attorney general, will open the seminar.

Due to space limitations, pre-registration is requested. There are no registration or other fees. Other workshops in the series are "Domestic Violence and Child Abuse" scheduled for April 20, and "Street Crime and the Offenders" on May 18.

Students enthusiastic over 'Uncle Bill's' anti-vandalism

By KEN SWART
Staff Writer

More than 2,000 Montclair elementary and parochial school students crammed into the Chaffey High School auditorium last week and yelled "Kid Power" with such force that some city and school officials were driven out by the noise.

It was an indication of the amount of enthusiasm and energy generated by "Uncle Bill," who presented his well-known anti-vandalism program to two mass assemblies of students earlier this week.

The two programs, designed to teach civic responsibility to Montclair youths as the kickoff event for the Montclair Pride Program, were presented in the Chaffey High School auditorium.

"Uncle" Bill Gray, a former public relations consultant and coordinator of the innovative anti-vandalism program, spoke to more than 4,000 elementary and parochial school students during the two 2-hour mass assemblies.

The approximate $2,000 cost for transporting the students to Chaffey High School, renting the auditorium and duplicating the materials to be used during the pre and post tests was paid jointly by the Montclair Chamber of Commerce, the Ontario-Montclair School District and the Montclair Kiwanis Club.

Gray donated his time to coordinate and present the same anti-vandalism program that has been proven effective throughout Southern California in substantially reducing school vandalism and violence.

The program also was used to kickoff the Montclair Pride Program, designed to gather community support for and involvement in Montclair's pursuit of the national "All America City" award.

The Montclair City Council, the Ontario-Montclair

School District board of trustees, city and school officials and department heads, school teachers and aides, community service clubs and organizations, high school and junior high school student councils all expressed unanimous support of Gray and his program.

Junior high school students soon will be competing with each other to see how clean they can keep their campuses, according to Gray, who said he expects to help Montclair schools set up programs to continue the lessons taught during the assemblies.

Gray said he was especially excited when Montclair school teachers said they would support the program since they administered tests to the students before and after the program to determine if the expected attitude change occurred.

Results will be tabulated and presented to city and school officials soon, Gray added.

After meeting with all Montclair teachers just before the program, Gray said he was pleased with the support they gave him.

"My impression was that the teachers were very receptive to him and interested in the program," said Al Colebank, district health consultant.

Several teachers, speaking outside the auditorium after the assemblies were over, said they were pleased with the program and hopeful that it would be effective.

"I'm really enthusiastic about it myself," Colebank said. "I think real good things are going to come out of it."

Colebank added, "If we can just get these kids to take some sort of action, or even be more inclined to call the police, vandalism really would decrease."

Although the program centers around the ugliness of vandalism, such things as litter, arson and school violence are discussed, according to Gray.

ALHS drummer selected for tour

An Alta Loma High School drummer has been selected to join a collegiate band representing the United States during a European tour this summer.

Flint Guile, 18, has been chosen to play with the 100-member United States Collegiate Wind Band that will travel to England, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland and Switzerland. The senior said the group will depart from New York City during the last week of July and will be traveling through the second week of August.

The band, under the direction of Professor Al G. Wright, director of bands at Purdue University in Indiana, will assemble in New York City for rehearsals prior to their July departure. Some pre-tour concerts are scheduled, the young musician said.

The musicians were chosen from all over the country after judges listened to audition tapes, he said.

Guile, who has been playing the drums since he was in the third grade, would like to make a career of music.

"I'm hoping to if things go right in the next year," he said. "I probably will."

Now he and a friend are trying to form a group to play at dances and other social functions. If other opportunities pop up, he will take advantage of them, he said, adding that he will take things as they come.

"I just like making music," he said.

Guile attributed his most recent success to his band director Merv Corner.

"I owe it all to him," said the young man.

His parents are Raymond and Fern Guile of Rancho Cucamonga.

Former cancer patients are helping others

Recovering from an amputation due to cancer is not an easy task, and few people would relive the experience if they could avoid it.

At Orthopaedic Hospital, however, some patients are reliving their experiences with osteosarcoma and other types of bone cancer so others will benefit.

Cathy Gentile, 16, is one of those patients. She had her right leg amputated at the hip in 1971 due to bone cancer. Today, she rides a bicycle, swims and walks without crutches — a great accomplishment when considering her level of amputation.

Miss Gentile is one of a number of people who participate in a unique hospital-based program that is coordinated by Orthopaedic Hospital and the American Cancer Society. She visits cancer patients living in the Los Angeles area who are about to have a limb amputated and patients who already have had amputations.

The Cancer Amputee Visitor Program matches recent cancer patients with patients who have emotionally recovered from the disease. Volunteers like Cathy visit the patient in the hospital, or soon after their release, and relate their experience with the disease.

Having 'been there' themselves, volunteer visitors can help the cancer patient by sharing the fears they once held about losing a limb and facing family and friends with a damaged body.

Volunteer visitors provide a visual role model for the amputee and also serve as a positive psychological model. Volunteers listen to the problems a new amputee is having in recovery and share social, psychological, work and school-related adjustments that they had to make, and what life with a prosthesis is like.

Orthopaedic Hospital social workers train the volunteer visitor and the volunteer's family. The program involves families working with families, doctor, nurses, social workers, physical therapists and prosthetists. All work closely with each patient and his/her family so the cancer victim can quickly return to an active life.

Disposition of felony cases listed

Numerous cases involving felony charges were judged recently in West Valley Superior Court. Names, addresses, charges and dispositions are as reported by the district attorney's office.

Conviction charges may in some instances be affected by terms of a plea arrangement between defendant and prosecutor. In cases where the sentence prescribed is a term in the county jail, the original felony charge reverts to a misdemeanor.

The cases and dispositions include:

— Bennie Lee Hawkins, 27, city of residence unknown. Charged with forcible rape. Found guilty by jury of that charge. Sentenced to five years in state prison by Judge Kenneth Ziebarth Jr.

— Dewayne McKinney, 18, Ontario. Charged with burglary and assault with a deadly weapon. Pleaded guilty to the burglary charge. Sentenced to one year in county jail by Judge Clifton Allen.

— Jose Herrera, age and city of residence unknown. Charged with possession of a weapon while in state prison. Pleaded guilty to that charge. Sentenced to 16 months in state prison by Judge Clifton Allen. Consecutive.

— Kerry Lyn Sampson, 24, Altadena. Charged with criminal conspiracy. Found guilty by a jury of that charge. Sentenced to four years in state prison by Judge Richard Garner.

— Donald Lee Cunningham, 44, Ontario. Charged with burglary. Pleaded guilty to that charge. Sentenced to four years in state prison by Judge Ziebarth. Judgment suspended on remaining counts.

— Terry Sanchez Flores, age and city of residence unknown. Charged with attempted murder and assault with a deadly weapon. Found guilty by jury of both charges. Sentenced to seven years in state prison for the attempted murder charge by Judge Ziebarth.

Air board eyes Kaiser pollution rule revisions

By PETER WONG
Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — New pollution controls for the troublesome coke ovens at Kaiser Steel's Fontana plant were submitted Friday to the South Coast Air Quality Management District board.

The controls would reduce pollutants from the 315 coke ovens "by about the same amount" as the original rule, said J.A. "Jeb" Stuart, the district's executive officer.

"But Kaiser would have a little more time to get there," Stuart added.

The revisions were prompted by a judge's decision eight months ago that Kaiser Steel could not face criminal prosecution for violations of the original rule.

The district board will consider the revisions at a public hearing in West Covina April 6, almost two years to the day it adopted the original rule.

Kaiser Steel's coke ovens are considered the most persistent and most difficult air pollution problem at the Fontana plant. Two of the seven coke oven batteries date back to the plant's founding in 1942.

Coal is placed into the ovens and converted to coke, an essential material in making steel.

The district rule is intended to control particulates, sulfur oxides and other pollutants leaking from those ovens. Carcinogens, or cancer-causing agents, have been identified in those pollutants.

The revised rule would be more lenient for the five coke oven batteries built before 1955, at least until the oven doors can be modified to comply with air pollution control standards. Kaiser Steel would be given until the end of 1981 to do this.

The rule would apply stricter standards to doors of the two coke oven batteries built after 1955.

No more than 12 percent of the doors of the coke ovens in the five oldest batteries would be allowed to leak at any one time under the revised rule. The limit would be 8 percent for doors of the coke ovens in the two newer batteries.

The original rule limited such leaks to 10 percent of the doors of all batteries. A battery consists of 45 separate ovens.

The revised rule also says the number of leaking doors would be averaged for both sides of coke oven batteries rather than each side separately. The permitted average would be 10 percent.

"They (Kaiser) must meet both standards or they're in violation," Stuart said in a brief interview with The Daily Report.

The revisions were negotiated by the district staff and Kaiser Steel executives over the past seven months. The district board told its staff Aug. 4 to review the original rule.

Stuart said Kaiser Steel has not agreed to every provision of the revised rule.

"Kaiser says they have some problems with it; I don't think they are serious problems," Stuart said.

Ray Robinson, Kaiser Steel spokesman, described it later as "a very tough rule."

Kaiser Steel executives received a copy of the proposed revisions earlier this week, "and we will have to look at it as it affects our operations," Robinson said.

Robinson said company executives plan to withhold further public comment on the revisions until the April 6 hearing.

Representatives of Local 7869 of the United Steelworkers of America did not participate directly in the negotiations which led to the proposed revisions, Stuart said, "but I think they know about it."

A member of the district board, Gladys Meade, had requested comments from the union which represents most of the 7,000 employees at the Fontana plant.

The original rule was part of a 1977 settlement involving 1,142 alleged air pollution violations at the Fontana plant. Practically all the alleged violations were detected in the coke ovens.

Under the 1977 settlement, Kaiser Steel was forced to pay a record $2.1 million in fines and comply with the rule.

The settlement ended a threat by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to blacklist Kaiser Steel for the alleged violations, detected during an intensive four-day inspection in September 1976.

In two San Bernardino Superior Court actions filed in 1977 and 1978, Kaiser Steel challenged both the reasonableness of the rule and its constitutional validity for criminal prosecution.

Free Rape Workshop scheduled

A free Rape Workshop will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday, March 9, at Chaffey College, sponsored by the college in association with the attorney general's crime prevention unit.

This workshop is the first in a series of crime prevention programs to be presented on the college campus in Alta Loma. It is designed to help people become aware of the extent of the crime of rape, the reasons behind the act, the legal remedies and treatment and prevention.

Members of the attorney general's crime prevention unit staff and representatives from San Bernardino County area agencies will participate. State Attorney General George Deukmejian will open the seminar.

Because of space limitations, pre-registration is requested. There are no registration or other fees. Call 987-1737, extension 275 or 276, for more information.

Other workshops in the series will be "Domestic Violence and Child Abuse" on April 20 and "Street Crime and the Offenders" on May 18.

Program dropped

In another Proposition 13-related cut, the Cucamonga School District board has decided to eliminate the band program at its junior high school.

The band at Rancho Cucamonga Middle School involved only 20 to 25 students, but had a full-time teacher, said Superintendent Julian Lopez.

Lopez said the teacher will be reassigned, possibly to an elementary school classroom.

The board voted last week to continue the district's outdoor education program, which takes sixth grade students each year on a week-long outing to the San Bernardino Mountains. While there, the students study environment and ecology.

This year's trip will be April 23-27 in Camp Oaks, a camp owned and operated near Big Bear by the West End YMCA.

The district pays for half the trip and the student's family pays the other half.

The board also discussed proposed language competency tests that fourth through eighth grade students will have to take beginning next year.

Disco dancing fete scheduled

Epsilon Beta, a chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, will celebrate St. Patrick's Day on March 18 by disco dancing at Tobies in Ontario.

Guests will be instructed on styles of dancing by Paul Adar, disc jockey. The public is invited. For further information call 983-8393 or 986-3046.

Educational benefit slated

Levine House of Fashion in Ontario will be narrated by Joyce Molinaro and modeled by chapter members: Anne Thornburg, Deloris Whelchel, Ethel Brazier, Roberta Franklin, Betty May, Gloria Dalton, Ms. Rhoades, Patricia Graham, Oneta Biddie and Carol Taylor.

Bob Moen from Ewart's in Pomona will describe men's apparel to be worn by Dusty Rhoades, Vern Vinatieri, Hap Gungung and Gary Hobo.

Jewelry will be displayed from "Everything is Beautiful."

300 enter media contest

More than 300 entries have been received and judged in the fifth annual "Writes of Spring" media competition sponsored by the Press Club of Southern California.

More than 100 club members were eligible to compete for prizes in 20 categories within five divisions:

writing, photography, composition, public relations and free-lance, and spectrum (miscellaneous).

Almost $1,500 has been collected for cash prizes and trophies.

Cal Poly will sponsor FFA field day

Two thousand high school Future Farmers of America and community college students will meet at Cal Poly Pomona March 31 to compete in the university's 29th Agricultural Education Field Day. The day is co-sponsored by the Bank of America and the university. According to Dr. Floyd J. Lark, acting chairman of agricultural science and vocational agriculture, the field day features general FFA competition, judging, a talent contest, an awards presentation, the FFA state citrus finals and a school sweepstakes award. "FFA," says Lark, "is an extension of high school vocational agriculture classes and of community college agriculture programs."

"The students who will compete here in March are preparing their skills to meet the challenges of producing food in tomorrow's hungry world." The field day, says Robert Verloop, student chairman of the event, is one of the largest agricultural judging events in California. The citrus finals are among the "toughest agriculture contests in the nation." The purpose of the field day is to prepare students for the state judging finals at Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo in May where Pomona winners will again compete against students from throughout California. The state finalists will go on to national competition in Kansas City, Missouri next November. Agricultural field day activities are divided into high school and community college events. FFA high school students will compete in 14 contests in addition to the citrus finals. The 14 contests comprise pest identification, seed and feed, dairy products, farm power and machinery, land judging, light horse and livestock judging, ornamental horticulture, poultry judging, vegetable crops, floriculture, floristry skills and horticulture skills. The contests in which community college students will compete are pest identification and livestock, light horse and land judging. In addition to its sponsorship by the university and the Bank of America, the field day is supported by the Cal Poly Agriculture Council of 16 agriculture student clubs and the Cal Poly chapter of Alpha Gamma Rho national agriculture fraternity.

Gold stamp available

Residents who earlier bought commemorative souvenirs of the Madonna of the Trail's golden anniversary may now have a gold stamp added to their souvenirs. Thomas Browman — designer of the souvenir featuring a picture of the Madonna statue and inscription regarding the recent celebration — said residents should bring the unstamped souvenirs to Foothill National Bank, 569

N. Mountain Ave., Upland. The souvenirs will be stamped according to their numbers in the limited 500-copy edition. Sales will continue through Feb. 28 at Foothill National Bank and Upland Savings and Loan Association, 188 N. Euclid Ave. The cost is $2.65 and the funds will help defray costs for the Upland Breakfast Chapter of Lions International.

You Can't "Wear Off" A Catch In The Back

By Dr. W. P. Helzer, D.C.

It is not a rare occasion that you meet another individual who seems to be favoring a shoulder or who sits or walks "carefully" in a semi-hunched position. They complain of a "catch" in the back.

If you suggest they seek professional care for their problem they claim it will go away. "It will wear off," one such person puts it. You can't just "wear off" a rheumatic pain, any more than you can expect a car frame to straighten out by itself after an accident.

You must treat the cause of pain to eliminate it. What causes these pains?

Falls, jars, or twists may cause the bones to slip slightly out of place and irritate the nerves passing out between them. This is the basic cause of pains through the lower back and hips. The irritation in the nerve is always present, but the pain becomes noticeable when there is an alteration in the blood due to weather changes, colds, flu or some infection in the body. A slight injury may also affect the already sick nerve.

Unless the bony misalignments are corrected by Chiropractic adjustments, or an accidental adjustment, the condition may progress into sciatica, various forms of paralysis, or some organic disturbance, even though the pain may not be present constantly to warn you.

(Note: More than 700 leading insurance companies recognize claims as that available at our office for specialized treatment for back pains as described above.)

(Note: Dr. Helzer maintains chiropractic offices at 108 East H Street, Ontario, telephone: 983-1711. (C) ARS 1976

Live and play in a country club neighborhood.

If you like to have a good time without going far from home, you are the family we had in mind when we planned Via Verde Point Homes.

The Via Verde Country Club (virtually in your backyard) caters to your social and recreational needs with golf, tennis, swimming and formal dining; and close by is a 2,200-acre park with swimming, hiking, camping, boating and fishing fun for the whole family.

Your home at Via Verde Point is designed to make entertaining impressive yet easy: the living rooms are spacious, with vaulted ceilings, fireplaces and adjoining formal dining areas; large family rooms are convenient to the spacious kitchens; and built-ins abound—microwave ovens, dishwashers, quality counters and cabinetry, air conditioning and full carpeting.

Finally, these homes have been carefully spaced to give 20, 30 and sometimes 40 feet of "privacy space" between your home and that of your nearest neighbor.

Driving Directions: Drive east on the San Bernardino Fwy. (10) to the Via Verde Ave. exit; turn right on Via Verde to Avenida Entrada; turn left on Avenida Entrada to Paseo Corrido; turn right on Paseo Corrido and follow the signs to models.

One and two stories. Three and four bedrooms.

Ground broken for new church

The roar of diesel equipment marked ground breaking for a permanent home of North Hills Seventh-day Adventist Church in Claremont.

Pastor Jim Walters was joined in the ceremony by Mayor Richard Newton of Claremont and Rev. Cornish Rogers who shares his United Methodist facilities with North Hills. With them were A. Roy Norcliffe, administrator from Southern Calif. Conference of Seventh-day Adventists; Robert Burman, architect and Burt Howard, building committee chairman. Earl King of Upland is handling construction.

Burman believes "the church plan is simple and functional, yet unique." With a diamond-shaped sanctuary and rectangular class wing, "the sanctuary will be designed to contribute to a sense of participation rather than of a mere spectator."

Clear glass walls behind the rostrum will reveal a planted terrace and high mountains above and beyond. The nature scene will continue inside with a circular stone wall to the left and natural stone planter on the right. Seating is for 304 people in addition to 35 seats in choir loft to the rear which may double as seating when not in use.

A 26 feet by 90 feet fellowship room will have a pass-through window to kitchen on one end and a stone fireplace on the other. For large affairs class room acoustical doors may be opened to a multi-purpose foyer and a space of 3,000 square feet.

The $465,000 stone church building will be located near Scripps Avenue on Mountain Avenue, a north-south artery in Claremont providing bus service. Space is provided for 114 vehicles, with class rooms and administrative offices accessible from side lot.

The church serves all north hill communities, although it's membership includes residents of West Covina, Loma Linda, Yorba Linda and Colton.

Valley Christian Center, 1404 W. Gladstone, San Dimas, presents the film "Corrie" on March 11, at 6 p.m. Millions have experienced a part of Corrie ten Boom's life and witnessed some of the experiences that built her towering faith through "The Hiding Place."

But there's so much more to tell. What events — one of which happened one hundred years earlier — led the ten Boom family to become involved in their mission for life? What thoughts passed through Corrie's mind as she saw her life unfolding before her on film? What experiences has she had since her miraculous release from Ravensbruck? In what ways has God continued to use her?

This film provides the answers, by taking you behind the scenes to meet the real Corrie ten Boom in an in-depth way.

San Antonio Chapter to install

The 1979-80 officers of the San Antonio Chapter of the American Association of Medical Assistants, State of California Inc., will be installed Tuesday in the Fiesta Room of Griswold's Inn, Claremont.

Phyllis Anast heads the slate of newly elected officers as president. Other officers are: Eileen Catron, vice president; Vicki Andrade, recording secretary; Amy Van Leersum, corresponding secretary; and Fran Krueger, treasurer.

Conroy, first alternate delegate; and Phyllis Bennett, second alternate delegate.

Advisers to the local chapter will be: Drs. Nazareth Asorian, Frederick Knudsen, Paul Frederick and Hathan Saffian, all of Pomona; Arthur Escovedo, a pharmacist; and Fred Estrada of Pomona, Tito Montes of Glendora, Helen Boughton of Pomona, Maria Mutschler of La Verne and Gary Appel of Pomona.

The AAMA was founded 23 years to provide paramedical personnel with continuing medical education. The San Antonio Chapter was established in 1959.

Consistent with pending legislation to require state certification of medical assistants, the new president's theme will be "Certification, a Must for You and Me."

In addition to social, educational and philanthropic activities, the San Antonio chapter will initiate a study program for medical assistants wishing to participate in AAMA certification in advance of mandatory requirement. The certification program will be guided by Mary Lou Conroy, who is local education chairman as well as the current AAMA state president.

Dinner meetings of the local chapter are held on the second Tuesday of each month at various local restaurants. To make reservations or obtain program or membership information, call Elizabeth Alba at 629-7926 days or 984-6965 evenings. Visitors are welcome to attend meetings.

Water system topic of display

A display by the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California showing the water system and how it works is now on view at the Upland Public Library on the mall level.

Flying over Mt. Kennedy in The Yukon

...from Kenneth Richter's 'O Canada'

'O Canada'

Two performances of travel film slated Friday

"O Canada," the fifth presentation of the 25th season of the Claremont Travel Film Series, will be shown in two performances Friday in Claremont.

Kenneth Richter will narrate the film at 2 p.m. and 8 o'clock in the evening in the Garrison Theater, Claremont.

"O Canada" is billed as a filmed exploration of two facets of Canada's identity. First, 200 years ago Canada, unlike the United States, decided not to cut the ties to the Old World. And second, since then it has rejected the "melting pot" theory of integration and made a conscious effort to preserve the cultural heritages of the many people who now make Canada their home.

The film depicts early explorers and the hardy French Canadian "voyagers," the walled city of Quebec, unique in the world, and the Great Trading companies that opened up much of Canada to the rest of the world.

Also seen will be sea-oriented Nova Scotia, then New Brunswick, Maine's close neighbor but with fascinating differences. Then will come lonely Newfoundland.

One area of the film will show vast Canada beyond the 200-mile band of population along the border and the stories of people who live there today: whites, Eskimos, Indians.

Fast-growing Montreal will be followed by Ottawa, the capitol, then cosmopolitan Toronto, a city where a man or woman can live, work, die in Italian or Hungarian or half a dozen other languages and still be a good Canadian.

After viewing the Great Plains and the people who help fill the grain elevators of the world, armchair travelers will see central and eastern European communities and their sturdy heritages.

In addition to seeing mountains, rivers and lakes, theater-goers also will view the rugged west coast, Vancouver, enchanting Victoria and Whitehorse in the Yukon.

Besides being a film lecturer, Richter also is known for his design and manufacturing of photographic test equipment as well as of aircraft instruments. He also has produced educational films.

The Claremont Travel Film Series is a benefit project for the Development Fund of Pomona College. Mrs. Milo Tigner is chairman of the Claremont Travel Film Series. Single tickets for "O Canada" can be purchased at the box office for each performance.

Skippping meals no help when dieting

By SHIRLEY BRIGHT
BOODY

Registered Dietitian
Copley News Service
Did you know you can hasten obesity by missing meals? By neglecting breakfast you are leaving yourself vulnerable to a weight gain. Additional weight gains are often incurred by missing the second most important meal — lunch.

This would appear to be illogical and indeed many people are completely mystified by their increases in weight while eating only one meal a day — dinner.

Let's examine the phenomenon by first taking a look at breakfast and why this is considered to be the most important meal of the day. The time span between dinner and breakfast is far greater than between any other meal. In fact, it is at least half the length of an entire day.

Although your body is at rest your digestive tract continues to function and by morning your blood sugar level (energy) is at its lowest point, and it will stay down until food is eaten and metabolized.

The most popular excuse is "time." Most people are in no hurry to get up. An extra few minutes in bed becomes far more attractive than a nourishing breakfast.

By the time mid-morning arrives their stomach begins to complain and they seek the closest source of food which will be a vending machine, coffee shop or catering truck. The food will inevitably be a doughnut, sweet roll or candy bar.

Unfortunately this pattern is often followed in order to lose weight. The result is quite the opposite leaving the patient puzzled and frustrated.

Eating a basic good breakfast of fruit, a protein such as an egg or bacon, toast or cereal and a beverage will provide energy and good nutrition. It will brighten the morning and give you zip to work or play.

The change in energy and general feeling of well-being that is experienced by eating a good breakfast is a surprise to many people who have habitually neglected this meal.

Breakfast skippers are usually hungry allday, perhaps without being conscious of it. Little or no lunch compounds this condition and by evening they are ravenous.

This results in a large dinner and nighttime nibbling. They have now loaded their body with fuel when they need it the least. Sleep is also impaired. It takes energy to digest and metabolize all that food, so of course they do not rest well.

Sleeping or resting is not using enough calories to use the food as energy so it is stored as fat. Most people think only of how many calories they ingest, not knowing that the time of the day they are consumed determines whether they will be burned as energy or stored as fat.

Eating at breakfast and spacing the remainder of nutrients throughout the day the food is used as fuel. The same amount of food, saved and eaten at night, will inevitably produce a fat body.

The longer you persist in this unbalanced pattern of eating the heavier you will become. It is simple to change — you can start tomorrow morning.

Dear Shirley: I have been eating granola twice a day, because I heard it was good for me. I have gained 15 pounds since I started. Could it be the granola? — W.R.

Dear W.R.: There are no magic "health foods." Granola is very high in carbohydrates and therefore it will help you gain weight.

Do you have bad eating habits? Send $1 to Shirley Bright Boody, P.O. Box 1038, Rancho Mirage, Calif. 92270, for Shirley's booklet "Changing Bad Habits With Behavior Modification," and information on my "Home Weight Reduction Program." Please enclose a large self-addressed, stamped envelope.

REQUEST FOR PUBLIC COMMENT ON INTENT TO CONSIDER RESCINDING ROUTE 30 FOOTHILL FREEWAY ADOPTION

The California Transportation Commission may rescind all or part of a 28 mile segment of adopted Route 30 in Los Angeles and San Bernardino Counties between Damien Avenue in La Verne and Route 194(15E) in San Bernardino.

ADOPTED ROUTE 30 FREEWAY ROUTING BEING CONSIDERED FOR RESCINDING

BACKGROUND

This route was adopted by the California Highway Commission in various segments between 1949 and 1963. Approximately 60% of the right of way required to construct a freeway has been acquired by the State. In a recent action the California Transportation Commission declared its intention to initiate an alternatives analysis of the Route 30 Transportation Corridor. The study is expected to be completed shortly after the final date for receiving comments from local agencies and the public. The California Department of Transportation has been requested by the California Transportation Commission to solicit any additional information that the Transportation Commission should have prior to its final consideration.

OPPORTUNITY TO COMMENT

Public comment on the Commission's intent to consider rescinding the freeway adoption is requested. All comments will be reviewed before final action is taken by the Commission. Comments should be submitted in writing by June 22, 1979 to either:

Classic dishes turned lo-cal with mushrooms

There are many classic — and rich! — dishes which feature mushrooms as an important ingredient: Coq Au Vin, Veal Marengo, Lobster Thermidor and Sole Au Papillote to name a few.

Coquille St. Jacques
1 pound fresh mushrooms
1 1/2 cups chicken broth
1/3 cup dry white wine, divided
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon thyme leaves, crushed
1 bay leaf
1 1/2 pounds scallops or firm fleshed low-fat fish (halibut, haddock, cod), cut in 1-inch chunks
3/4 cup skim milk
3 tablespoons flour

1/4 cup sliced scallions or green onions

Rinse, pat dry and slice mushrooms (makes about 5 cups); set aside. In a large skillet place chicken broth, 1/4 cup of the wine, salt, thyme and bay leaf. Bring to a boil; simmer, covered, for 5 minutes. Add reserved mushrooms. Simmer, covered, until almost tender, about 5 minutes. Remove mushrooms with a slotted spoon to a bowl; set aside. Add fish. Simmer, uncovered, until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork, about 5 minutes. Remove fish with a slotted spoon to the bowl containing mushrooms; keep warm. Simmer liquid, uncovered, until reduced to 3/4 cup. Combine milk and flour. Blend into hot liquid. Stir over very low heat until thickened (do not boil). Add scallions, reserved mushrooms and fish and remaining wine. Cook and stir over very low heat until hot (do not boil). If desired, serve in coquille shells or individual 1 cup casseroles garnished with parsley. Yield: 4 portions. Approximately 105 calories per portion.

Beef Stroganoff
1 pound fresh mushrooms
1 pound flank steak
1 cup beef broth
1 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup cold water
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/4 cup low-fat plain yogurt, at room temperature

1/2 teaspoon paprika
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard

Preheat broiler to hot. Rinse, pat dry and slice mushrooms (makes about 5 cups); set aside. Broil steak on a rack in a broiler pan 6 inches from heat source until rare, about 5 minutes on each side. Cut diagonally into thin strips, about 2 inches long; set aside. In a large skillet bring broth to a boil. Add onion and reserved mushrooms; cover and simmer until vegetables are tender, about 5 minutes. Remove with a slotted spoon; set aside. Simmer broth until reduced to 1/2 cup; remove from heat. Combine water, flour and cornstarch; mix well. Stir into broth with a wire whisk. Cook and stir over low heat until thickened, about 2 minutes. Remove from heat. Combine yogurt, paprika, salt, garlic powder and mustard. Add to thickened broth, stirring until smooth. Mix in reserved beef and mushroom mixture. Warm over very low heat, stirring constantly, until hot, about 5 minutes (do not boil). Serve over noodles, if desired. Yield: 4 portions. Approximately 230 calories per portion.

A new slim version of Coquilles St. Jacques features elegant, low-calorie mushrooms, cuts the calories from a fattening 505 per portion to a mere 105. No matter what mushrooms are used in or with, the strange vegetable makes every dish elegant.

1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
2/3 cup milk

Heat oven to 400 degree F. Spoon 2 tablespoons margarine into a 10-inch heavy, ovenproof skillet; place in oven to melt margarine and heat skillet. In medium bowl, combine remaining ingredients; beat until smooth. Pour batter into prepared hot skillet. Bake 20 to 25 minutes until edges are deep brown and puffy. Loosen pancake with knife or spatula; cut into wedges. Top with butter, powdered sugar, jam, fruit syrup or filling, sweetened fresh fruit, sauteed apples, shredded cheese, crumbled bacon or cubed ham. 4 servings.

Beer Cheese Soup

2 cans (11 oz. each) cheddar cheese soup
1 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
3/4 cup milk
1/2 cup beer
Crumbled crackers
Chopped parsley

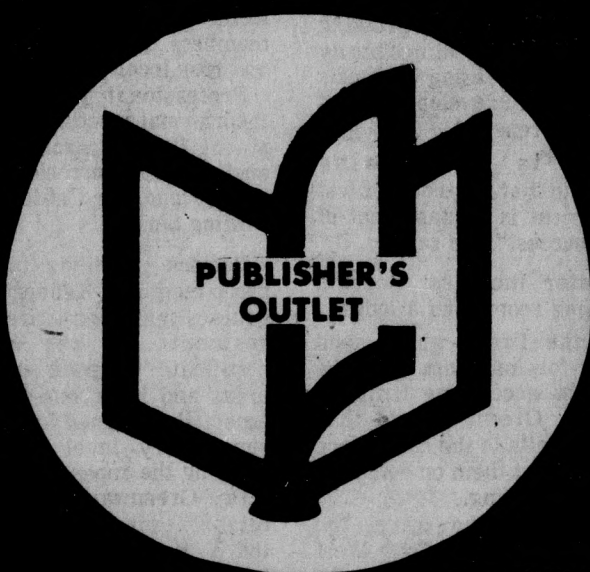

In medium saucepan, combine first 5 ingredients. Heat through, but do not boil. Stir in beer. Top servings with crackers and parsley. 4 cups.

MICROWAVE: In 1 1/2-quart glass casserole, combine first 5 ingredients. Cover and microwave 3 minutes on HIGH. Stir. Recover and continue cooking 2 to 3 minutes on HIGH until hot (about 150 degree F.). Stir in beer. Top servings with crackers and parsley.

Apple a day won't keep dentist away

"Nature's toothbrush," the apple, is reappraised in an issue of the prestigious British Medical Journal. Apples may bring about some cleansing, according to the journal, but they do not remove plaque between the teeth and near the gum margin, and "most studies have shown no improvement in gingival health."

Because apples contain sugar and are very acid, they are not without hazard to the teeth, though not so damaging as some other traditional dental enemies in the diet, the article states.

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK 9 AM-9 P.M.

On a peak on the campus of Cal Poly, Pomona, with mountains and clouds in the background, is Kellogg West, a conference center where every meeting room has a view window

Scenic Cal Poly setting draws big name U.S. firms

Xerox, Lockheed and other big names in American business regularly send employees to a peak overlooking the Pomona Valley. That's because on the peak on the campus of Cal Poly State University, Pomona, is Kellogg West, a conference center where every meeting room has a view window.

In one of those conference rooms is a floor-to-ceiling window looking out on a grassy slope on which a tree bends gently in the wind.

From the dining room, on a clear winter day you can see local cities spread out in the valley below and snow-capped mountains in the distance.

"Don't be distracted by the view, just remember it," said Dr. Joan Greenway, Cal Poly dean of continuing education, a position which places her in charge of continuing education at Kellogg West and elsewhere on the Cal Poly campus.

"Companies can bring people here to the comparative seclusion of a campus setting to deal with things they can't deal with in a day-to-day work situation," she said.

She said that although "five freeways meet at our front door" Kellogg West "has a beautiful serenity and stillness about it."

"It is close to the things that create stress. It is close to Ontario International Airport but there is no airplane noise. At night, you can hear owls hooting," she said.

Dr. Greenway said Kellogg West has been attracting a growing number of business meetings partly because of an increasing emphasis in business on staff development and organizational renewal.

"There is a growing understanding that the toughest test of management is management of human resources," she said.

The center includes meeting rooms, dining rooms and a lodge.

Among the firms which send employees for meetings are the three largest accounting firms in the U.S. Dr. Greenway said they send new recruits to the conference center to instruct them on company goals, not accounting.

Perhaps those who travel the greatest distance to Kellogg West are the Japanese businessmen who come to learn about American business techniques and technology.

For example, Japanese food industry executives come to hear lectures (translated for them by members of the Cal Poly faculty) and tour local supermarkets.

Professional groups also hold their annual meetings at the center, among them measurement science engineers, the corrosion engineering society and the California English Testing Service.

Besides providing facilities for group meetings, Kellogg West offers courses and seminars for local residents. It has a business certificate program in nine core areas and holds one-day seminars especially designed for people at the supervisory level who are just learning the ropes.

Dr. Greenway said the center, established in 1971 with a grant from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation, was "designed with great thought as a center for adults to learn in."

It is the tenth educational center to be built with a grant from the foundation started by Kellogg, once the owner of the land where Cal Poly now stands. He originally established an Arabian horse ranch there in 1925.

For use in the meeting rooms, which can accommodate groups as small as eight or as large as 300, all kinds of audiovisual equipment is available, even videotape gear and computer linkups at extra cost.

The dining room, where Cal Poly hotel and restaurant management students work on internships, has seating for more than 300.

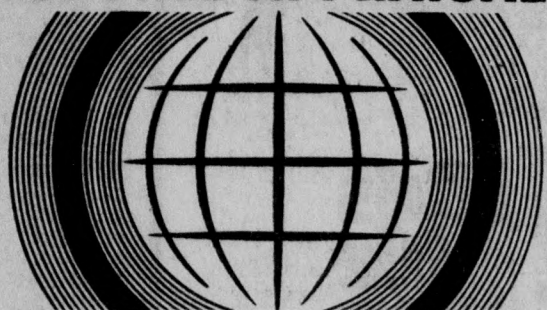

There are 87 lodge rooms, 51 built when Kellogg West was established in 1971 and 36 in an addition constructed last year with funds from the Kellogg Foundation and other sources.

Though located on the Cal Poly campus, Kellogg West sustains itself without use of tax funds.

Prop. 13 budget cuts affect libraries

By MARGE GROSS
Staff Writer

If you go to the library and can't find your favorite magazine or newspaper, don't blame the librarians — blame Proposition 13.

The results of the budget cuts due to the tax-slashing proposition are starting to affect libraries in Ontario, Upland, Chino, Montclair and Rancho Cucamonga.

Early evidence of Proposition 13 was the reduction in libraries' hours of service and sizes of the staffs. Now and in the near future, the cutting of financial corners in buying books and supplying magazines and newspapers will be evident.

Librarians have assured patrons that every effort will be made within the Inland Library system to find the magazines and/or papers they seek.

Terry Pringle at the Rancho

Cucamonga Branch Library said out of 150 magazine subscriptions, he had to cut out 50, and many essential ones had to be eliminated.

"But we tried to work with other branches, so if we had two car or two photography magazine subscriptions, we would keep one and another library would subscribe to the other. Then we can borrow back and forth."

The main problem in this arrangement is that it takes time, Pringle admitted, and could be discouraging to a patron in a rush.

The Inland Library System consists of 11 independent public libraries in San Bernardino, Inyo and Riverside Counties. All have agreed to cooperate in their efforts to locate, deliver and share their resources to provide total library service.

Member libraries are connected to each other by telecommunication equipment and a delivery system is utilized for request of materials or information from other libraries.

At the Ontario City Library, Barbara Flynn, head of technical services, said budget expenditure cuts in materials were made in order to retain personnel. In the periodicals area, she said an attempt was made to slash all subject areas. There are 168 magazines and newspapers not on the subscription list for 1979.

Linda Yao, librarian of the Upland Public Library, said due to Proposition 13, the separate Upland library tax was "wiped out." Mrs. Yao said this has resulted in cutting personnel and a decrease of 30 percent in service hours.

Few periodicals were cut, she said, but admitted by 1980, more cuts will be made. "We only cut periodicals which were of interest to small groups," she said.

With the decrease in service hours, only an 18 percent decrease in circulation has been realized, the Upland librarian noted.

Dorothy Berkoff, head librarian of the Montclair Branch Library, said that library is not getting many new books.

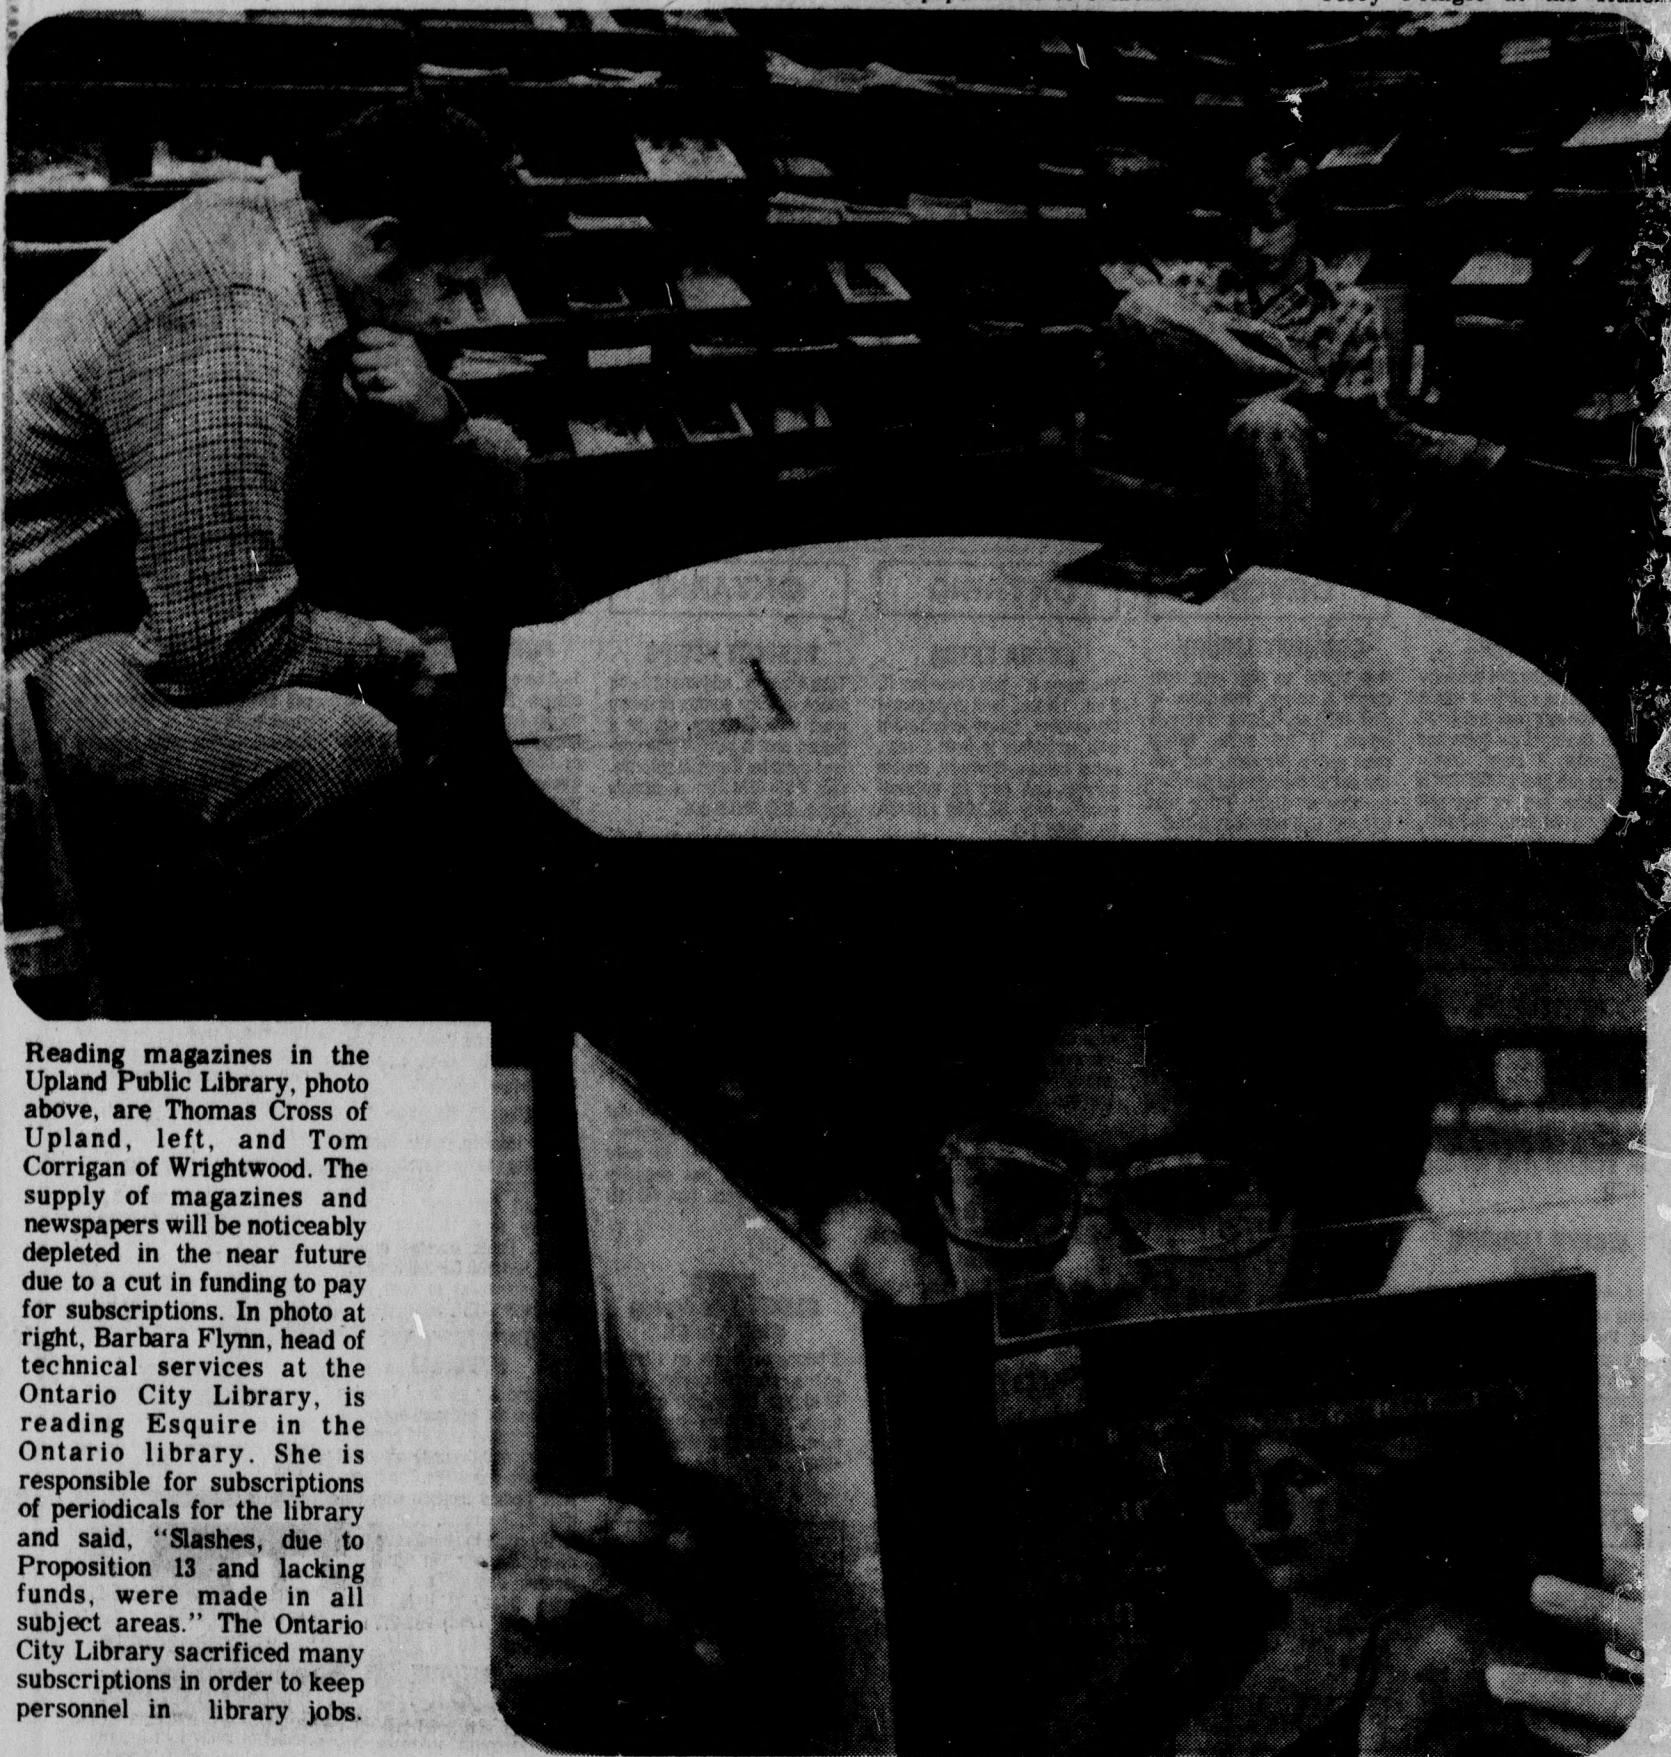

"It looks very dreary," she said. "We belong to a rotating leasing plan, and of 110 new books, we had to send all but 10 back."

The Montclair Library will go from a budget of $12,000 to $5,000, Mrs. Berkoff said, but didn't think the impact will be felt until May, primarily due to continued subscriptions still being received.

At the Chino Branch Library, Susan Scamara, head of the children's library services, speaking for Linda Humphrey, librarian, said the cutback in periodicals would amount to about 50 percent there.

"We didn't cut the popular magazines such as 'Time' and 'Newsweek,'" The Chino Library also is anticipating more cuts in personnel in May, following the cuts made in January of this year.

All librarians said every effort will be made to give the quickest and most efficient service to patrons regardless of cutbacks in time, personnel and books, along with magazines and papers. Reference departments are still functioning with resources available to them from a wide area.

Road repairs to be made by Montclair

The Montclair Public Works Department will now repave or repair any streets cut or broken by the Monte Vista County Water District, the water district board announced Wednesday.

Both the city and the water district entered into a joint agreement that eliminates the water district from using a private contractor to repave the street cuts made when installing or repairing a water or sewer line.

The water district will be responsible for notifying the city public works department by telephone when a street needs repairs, and keeping a log of all calls for service made to the city.

The city will charge the water district a regular rate for the repaving service, the cost depending on the thickness of the asphalt and the square footage to be repaved.

If a square foot of asphalt had to be repaved by the city to 1-inch thickness, the city would charge the water district 95 cents; a square foot of asphalt repaved to 3 inch thickness would cost $1.15.

A similar agreement, in the form of a resolution, was approved by the Montclair City Council last week.

"It's in the best interests of the district to allow the city to do the work, especially since it's less expensive," than using a private contractor, said Jack George, water district board president.

"It's not cost effective for the district to use an independent contractor to do it (the repaving)," said G. Michael Milhiser, city administrator.

"The district would rather use the city instead."

Milhiser noted, however, "if our own workload gets too heavy, we'll have to recommend they (the district) use an independent contractor," for some of the work.

Regardless of whether the water district uses city services or hires an independent contractor, "it's imperative to get these repairs (on city streets) done in a timely manner," Milhiser said.

He explained that several complaints have been received by residents who claim their cars were damaged after driving over un-repaired roads in the city.

In a related matter, private developers who plan to cut into Montclair city streets will be responsible for a $200 refundable deposit, the Montclair City Council decided last week.

The council, in the same resolution which established service to the water district, required any developer cutting into a street to pay a $200 refundable deposit as insurance in case the street is not repaved properly.

If the developer repaves the street to the satisfaction of the city, the $200 will be refunded.

But if the developer does not repave the street, or does not do so satisfactorily, the city will keep the $200.

If the city is not able to satisfactorily complete the work even with the $200, any additional cost over the $200 will be billed to the developer, who will be responsible for paying any additional cost.

Different Spokes

for different folks.

What kind of spokes bespeak your fancy? In the Want Ads there are as many different kinds as there are preferences -- from baby carriages to mobile homes and 18-wheel semis.

Deals in wheels cover the wide range of all ages, featuring such standard modes of movement as the tricycle, bicycle, motor bike, every make and model car, and trucks of every size and description. You also find a good variety of work vehicles, such as wheelbarrows and yard and garden equipment.

People just naturally turn to Classified when it comes time to convert the old wheels to cash and move up to something bigger and better. They know there is someone out there who will be looking for a bargain. And they know that only Classified offers the variety of choice and the flexible price range that mean exceptional buys.

There's only one market place that has it all -- the Classified Section.
